Home pride is natural. Every good citizen takes pride in the advancement in material respects of the community in which he lives. Surely then, the people of Lancaster may be pardoned for feeling especially gratified that their town has become so popularly known as a thriving community of prosperous business enterprises. Since Lancaster first became known to the outside world as a location of bright and encouraging surroundings it has never striven for any fictitious boom, but its prosperity has steadily increased in proportion to the development of the surrounding country. The prime impetus of its prosperity is its eligible situation, surrounded as it is by the most fertile farming lands in Kentucky. While Garrard county, of which Lancaster is the judicial seat, is capable of raising a diversity of crops it is chiefly noted as a hemp and tobacco growing section. The remarkable success of these two crops in Garrard County is a matter upon which she congratulates herself, and which she is proud to publish to the world. In the raising of hemp the lands of this county have yielded more abundantly than any section of similar area in the state. The crop of 1900 which was handled in 1901 amounted to 2,800,000 pounds, and the crop of 1901 which is now being marketed will exceed 3,000,000 pounds. The yield is constantly increasing each year, the average for the past one, per acre, being 1200 pounds. Seventy-five per cent. of the hemp seed used in cultivation in the state is produced in Garrard County. Over 2,000,000 pounds of tobacco was raised last year, or about 1500 pounds to the acre, an excellent yield and one of which any section may feel proud. Of this, nearly 1,000,000 pounds was handled here in Lancaster, the average price received being 64 cents per pound. A vast portion of the hemp of the county is also marketed here the prices ranging from $5.00 to $5.30 per 112 lbs, all of which goes to prove that the buyers and shippers of Lancaster are live wide-awake men who provide conditions which attract farmers to this market from all parts of the county. And since the buyer and grower are as necessary to each other as the consumer and producer are to the life of any industry, credit must be shared by both branches to whose energy and ability the remarkable success is due. A drive through the county will convince one of the thrift and enterprise of the farmers: the fine farms, well cultivated and well stocked, good residences and out buildings speak plainer than words of their energies. Backed up by this excellent farming community, and with active business and professional men, intelligent and social citizens, good railroad facilities, a splendid graded school, churches of all denominations and with fine modern improvements, Lancaster is indeed blessed. Lancaster has always taken an active interest in educating her youth, and the graded school is a source of great pride to our citizens. It is not a city institution but is supported by taxation levied on the property within what is known as the "school district" and which embraces considerable territory outside the city limits. The institution is presided over by Prof. J. H. Patterson an educator of experience and ability, assisted by a competent corps of teachers. As a typical temperance town there is no better example within the borders of the state, and its moral tone has ever been the object of watchful regard by its citizens. All the leading fraternal organizations are well represented in Lancaster and through them social and friendly relations are kept thoroughly alive. To day Lancaster has a population of 2,000 souls. The business part of the town is built up with brick business blocks, and no town in the state can boast of more enterprising and progressive business and professional men, all of whom are alive to the interests of the place, and walk hand in hand to promote its welfare and growth, which in a great measure is the secret of its prosperity. Truly metropolitan facilities have been acquired in a splendid electric light system, a telephone system, a fine hotel and opera house, machine shops, and flour mills, with many others contemplated. A description of the new water-worksystem, the contract for which is soon to be awarded by the City Council, will be found in another column of this issue. If the growth of Lancaster and her development have been pleasing in the past, the rapid advances in the future will undoubtedly surpass the expectations of even the most sanguine, for the increased facilities afforded by the contemplated electric railroad from Lancaster to Camp Nelson over the Lexington road, and connecting with the Lexington system, will add about $300,000 to the wealth of Garrard county in enhanced values in real estate along the line, besides benefiting the public by reduced freight rates on coal and all articles of merchandise which can be shipped by water to Hickman. THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR GOING AWAY FROM LANCASTER TO SATISFY YOUR WANTS. The home merchants enjoy every advantage and opportunity that capital or experience can furnish or suggest, in addition to which their reputations, which are their greatest capital and which must be preserved at any cost, throw around their patrons a reliable safeguard. PATRONIZE, THEREFORE, THOSE WHO SUPPORT HOME INSTITUTIONS AND WHO PAY THEIR JUST SHARE OF TAXATION. Remember that "bills far away look green" but their verdure is oftentimes disappointing. So, likewise, bargains far away look tempting, and in nine cases out of ten, bargain purchased in other cities are dear experiences. The wise and prudent confine their patronage to those of established reputation in the community, for they know that, in the end, greater satisfaction is secured and the best interests are naturally promoted.

J. JOSEPH, ACT.

Dry Goods, Shoes, Ladies Furnishings

Among the oldest and best known houses in Lancaster employed supplying the needs of the people in dry goods, shoes and ladies furnishing goods is that of J. Joseph, established twenty-two years ago. In dry goods is carried a full line of dress goods, notions, infants goods, fancy work, and all articles that go to make up a complete first-class stock, including "W. B." "R. & G." and "Pennant Winner" corsets for which this house has the exclusive local sale. A nice business is done in supplying patrons with their needs in footwear, the stock of shoes carried being selected with great care from celebrated makers. Nathan-Plaut & Co's productions are the leaders in ladies shoes. This department grows in popular favor daily for thorough, honest and durable goods can be had which bear evidence of skilled workmanship and correct styles. The aim of the proprietor is to handle goods of established reputation and which are an honest equivalent for the money. Mr. Joseph in his long experience with the trade knows the wants of the public thoroughly. He personally looks after the details of all departments and manages his business with marked ability and thorough system.

C. C. & J. E. STORMES.

Pharmacy.

The handsomely furnished, attractively arranged and well stocked pharmacy of C. C. & J. E. Stormes ranks among the oldest establishments in the mercantile history of Lancaster, and generations have supplied their needs in drugs from this house. The stock comprises a full line of drugs and chemicals, patent and proprietary medicine of standard reputation and acknowledged merit, fancy and toilet articles, stationery, etc. In the prescription department "accuracy and purity" are the watchwords, and in a continued patronage the public have learned to form a correct estimate of the reliability and precision of J. E. Stormes, who is a registered pharmacist, and a member of the State Board of Pharmacy. This business was established by C. C. Stormes, one of the pioneer merchants of Lancaster, in 1850, and for the past sixteen years has been operated by his son, John E. Stormes. In his long and active business career the strictest integrity has characterized all Mr. Stormes' transactions with the public and in standing and popularity, in prestige and prominence, his establishment represents in stock, methods and patronage all that goes to make up a first-class pharmacy.

THE LOGAN DRY GOODS CO.

John M. Logan, manager.

The thoroughly energetic and enterprising create their own opportunities and through them achieve success. This is particularly true of the establishment of John M. Logan the alertness of whose management has placed it among the leading, progressive and important enterprises of Central Kentucky. Four years ago the business was established in a modest way with a small but select stock. A reputation was to be built up, a patronage to be secured and the competition of merchants well and favorably known in the community was to be met and surmounted. These odds were soon overcome by wide-awake and hustling business methods, and time brought its reward in popular recognition and a daily increasing trade. Today, this establishment in magnitude, in volume of patronage enjoyed, in variety and high standard of stocks shown, and in prices quoted ranks the leader among the representative enterprises of Central Kentucky. Every one has witnessed its growth and development which was not the result of chance or luck but the direct consequence of judicious advertising, of anticipating popular needs and supplying them promptly and effectually. The stock comprises dry goods, notions, ladies furnishing goods, millinery, carpets, shoes, clothing, gents furnishings, hats etc. The dry goods department contains an excellent assortment of silks, woolen and washable goods, and a full line of tailor-made garments, shirts etc., from the cheap to the higher grades. In corsets are found the Lady American and Jackson, excellent makes, and in hosiery the celebrated Black Cat brand. In ladies shoes, Queen Quality and Princess Shoes are the leaders, and King Quality, a $3.50 production just placed on the market, will be introduced in mens wear this season. Mr. Logan has made every effort to secure for the spring trade the latest and brightest offerings, and the goods are now beginning to arrive. Each department will present a most attractive array of fashionable articles, and the stock throughout will not be excelled even by that carried in the large establishments of the metropolitan cities. A new departure, and one that will undoubtedly meet with popular favor and recognition is the Millinery department. This is in charge of Miss D. B. Harris, assisted by an experienced trimmer from the city, and the handsome display of artistic creations exhibited exceeds anything ever before shown in this locality. How well Mr. Logan has succeeded in business the people of this vicinity already know; his large store and large stock tell the story, and tell it in a convincing manner. He combines judicious aggressiveness with pronounced business ability, and gives to the community a live, wide-awake and thoroughly progressive establishment, where quality and quantity are measured by satisfaction, and value by honest equivalents. The experience gained by Mr. Logan in years on the road as traveling salesman for the leading eastern dry goods and clothing houses has proved of immense value to him in his retail business, for not only did he acquire a perfect knowledge of all productions on the market, but as well, a thorough insight into all the "tricks of the trade," and these qualifications enable him to secure not only the best goods, but also to procure them at the lowest and closest figures possible.

H. T. LOGAN.

Clothing, Shoes, Furnishing Goods.

The metropolitan advantages which Lancaster possesses in mercantile lines are strongly evidenced in the establishment of H. T. Logan. Large establishments are quick to recognize enterprise, and make selling agents of those only who have ability and aptitude to represent faithfully and well their standard productions, which involve and are the result of the very best skill, and large expenditure in money. Hence the metropolitan advantages offered, as before stated, because in the large and select stock of H. T. Logan are to be found Hart, Shaffner & Mark, Fleisher Bros. and "Perfection" brand clothing, Drew, Selby & Smith's sterling Florsheim & Co's. fine shoes. "Walk-Over" and Webber Bros. gent's foot-wear, "Excelsior" boys school shoes, Cluett-Perabody shirts, Robert Rels & Co's. underwear, Stetson hats, Sweet, Orr & Co's overalls and shirts, and equally well-known makes in all the many articles that go to make up a first-class furnishing goods stock. In merchant tailoring this establishment offers the best facilities in artistically and fashionably cut garments made to measure by the Globe Tailoring Company, of Cincinnati, Lamb & Co., of Chicago, Born & Co. and B. Stern, of New York City, the reputation for honest value of each of whom is well-known as to need no comment. The proprietor, H. T. Logan is a hustling, and wide awake business man. His shoe windows reflect the neat, nobby and dressy in the ever changing styles, and the interior on counter, shelf and show case, tells of the studied care and alertness practiced to give to the people of Garrard county what is considered the "best thing" by the country's celebrated haberdashers. This spirit of progressiveness has won the favor of the young men of the country, who have learned by experience that all that is latest and best in wearing apparel can be found in his store.

H. M. BALLOU.

Fancy Groceries, and Fancy Queens-
Ware.

Value and variety in all mercantile lines are points made frequently to induce trade, but volume and variety, amount to nothing if not strictly adapted to the needs and desires of patrons. A stock of groceries which indicates a knowledge of standard productions as well as evidences, a close study of popular tastes, is that of H. M. Ballou. The canned goods and standard preparations bear the labels of leading firms and embrace many brands to be found only in the first-class establishments of the larger cities. The stock of coffee contains quality for price, a fact evidenced in the steady demand for Chase and Sanborn's seal brand, and the Yale brand, while J. E. M's whole wheat and Graham flour are popular with housekeepers throughout this section, who recognize their excellent bread-making qualities. Mr. Ballou has the local agency for the celebrated Lowney chocolates and other choice confections, which, for purity and excellence are not to be surpassed. His cigar case contains all the leading and popular brands, and receives the patronage of the most particular smokers of the vicinity. A most important department is that containing the china and queensware, where is presented a most handsome assortment of table articles from the plain and solid plates and cups, to the highly decorated dinner sets and the delicately tinted Haviland pieces. All Haviland ware is imported direct for Mr. Ballou by Holloway & Reece, of Indianapolis, the largest importers in the West. Thus will be seen that not only is the stock of Mr. Ballou not to be excelled in this section in volume and variety, but also in its selections of articles of established reputation, while the prices throughout will stand the test of honorable competition anywhere. Mr. Ballou is an enterprising business man, and has given to Lancaster an establishment which is very creditable in every respect.

ROMANS & ELMORE.

Manufacturers of Fine Vehicles.

The cheap "made to sell" vehicles have seen their day. The reaction has set in, and manufacturers of high grade vehicles are being kept busy to supply the demand. The establishment of Romans & Elmore during its business career has supplied the public faithfully and well in their demand for fine buggies and carriages, and the result is a reputation for a class of work which bears the stamp of high grade workmanship and finish, and constructed from the very best material. The plant contains a full equipment of the latest improved tools and machinery, and embodies all the ideas which long experience in vehicle construction could suggest. There are many strong points of excellence in all the work of this establishment, so many in fact, and of such merit, that it cannot be surpassed anywhere. Mr. Romans the founder of the business is a native of Garrard county and from boyhood has made the building of buggies and carriages his sole occupation. To his natural ability which has earned for him the reputation of an expert, he is an original thinker and his vehicles contain many improvements which are not usually found in vehicles made outside of his establishment. Mr. Romans was joined by J. W. Elmore about one year ago, and the business is now run under the firm name Romans & Elmore. This firm gives a guarantee with every vehicle, an easy thing for them to do, knowing its full history from the crude material to the finished production. Prices are bed rock, workmanship the best, a policy which has made the establishment well known and popular. Repair work of every description is done promptly, the high class of work leaving this shop will be found to be as skillfully executed as that turned out by any other establishment in the country. Romans & Elmore also carry a big stock of harness embracing stock, wagon, plow and buggy goods. This harness is the best on the market, is constructed from oak tanned leather, and is put together with a view to durability as well as to style. In their repository will be found the Kauffman, Columbus Buggy Co., and Moyer productions in carriages and buggies, Old Hickory and Mitchell farm wagons, and many other standard makes.

Romans & Elmore.

Lancaster An Excellent Market.

These sketches here presented have been prepared for the purpose of renewing and extending acquaintanceship with the men and the establishments of this, one of Kentucky's most prosperous towns. Lancaster is noted for her enterprising and public spirited business men, whose methods in all transactions are marked by enterprise and alertness. They care well and faithfully for their buyers and possess every advantage to provide for the needs of patrons at rock bottom prices. These facts are known and as a result Lancaster's trade circles continue to grow larger rapidly. The citizens of the town and vicinity can find no possible excuse to buy outside of this market, for equal, and in many instances better advantages and opportunities provided by capital, experience, enterprise and established integrity exist here, and some or more of the foregoing requisites to satisfactory buying are usually wanting away from home. Here purchasers can secure better prices and more honest value. Buyers deal with merchants whom they know, and by whom they are known. The reputation of the home merchant is his best capital, and this fact, even in the strictest business sense urges a policy of thoroughly honest methods for self protection. In the sketches in this edition no attempt has been made to overdraw or exaggerate, and credit where credit is due has been given freely and ungrudgingly.

MORROW & McROBERTS.

Jewelry and Optical Goods.

In these days of cheap imitations the prudent and wise when about to invest money in watches and jewelry seek out a responsible person to aid them in their selection. In this line Mr. E. W. Morrow offers to the public the knowledge obtained from twenty-five years practical experience at the business, and since locating in Lancaster the integrity of his methods have been well established. Mr. R. E. McRoberts, the other member of the firm is the well-known druggist, and needs no introduction. The stock is made up of an elegant assortment of fancy clocks, plated and solid silverware, watches, jewels, and everything to be found in a first-class jewelry store. As an optician, Mr. Morrow has qualified himself by a thorough study of the science of optics at the Spencer Optical Institute, of New York City, of which he is a graduate. The examination of the eyes and the correction of the many defects of vision are with him a specialty, and he is provided with the latest and most approved devices and instruments known to the profession. Morrow & McRoberts appreciate the fact that confidence; where there is question of quality, is essential to the successful career of any establishment, and this they endeavor to win and preserve by first-class workmanship, the strictest integrity in the sale of articles and insuring satisfaction by a guarantee which is as good as a bank note. These methods win popular recognition, and a nice business is the result.

THE LANCASTER SANITARIUM.

Drs. Kinnaird, Wesley & Burnett.

Arrangements are about completed, and work will be begun at once, to transform the building now occupied by Dr. Kinnaird into a modern, up-to-date Sanitarium, where patients may be properly cared for during treatment by trained and skilled nurses, and where all conveniences will be at hand for the successful performance of operations. This will afford to people here at home the same advantages enjoyed by those living in the metropolises of the country, and will truly be welcome news to many a poor sufferer, for the long journey by rail to some distant Sanitarium so detrimental and oftentimes fatal, will be rendered unnecessary. A Roentgen or X Ray machine of the latest design and build, hot-air and vapor apparatus, together with all other modern appliances will be installed, and while the equipment and services rendered will be on a par with any similar institution in the country, the charges will be considerably less. The staff will comprise Drs. Kinnaird, Wesley & Burnett, three of the most learned and distinguished physicians and surgeons of Central Kentucky, detailed mention of whom will be found in this issue. Accommodations will be afforded for twenty patients, and those not desiring to remain at the institution will be treated in the office as heretofore.

CAPT. WM. HERNDON.

Attorney at Law.

It would be an unpardonable omission not to mention Capt. Wm. Herndon in this review of Lancaster professional and business men, because his pronounced ability as a lawyer, and his influence and popularity as a citizen have given him a reputation whose limits it would be hard to define. Capt. Herndon was born and raised at Irvine, Ky., attending in early life the select schools of his native section. In September 1861 he enlisted in the 8th Kentucky Infantry, serving with intrepidity and distinction, and having been badly wounded at Dobyns Ferry and Stone River, he received an honorable discharge and returned to his home in 1863. He then applied himself diligently to the study of the law and under the careful tutelage of Col. S. M. Barnes mastered its principles and was admitted to the bar in 1868. In 1874 he established his offices in Lancaster and has during the intervening years, built up a nice clientele and incidentally an excellent reputation. Capt. Herndon has been twice elected City Attorney, served for several years as U. S. Commissioner, and for six years as Commonwealth's Attorney of the 8th District, a tribute to his capabilities and to his popularity and personal influence. He is at present a member of the City Council and a Trustee of the Graded School of Lancaster. The same motives that prompted the people of his home section to award him distinction prompted Gov. Bradley to select him as Commissioner of the Deaf & Dumb Institute at Danville, the duties of which position he has discharged for the past six years with his characteristic ability and fidelity to popular interests.

W. WARD.

Electric Light Plant, Flour Mill.

This institution founded in 1897 gives to the inhabitants of Lancaster modern and metropolitan advantages in municipal and private illumination. The plant is thoroughly equipped with the latest improved engines, machinery, dynamos and auxiliary apparatus to render a prompt and reliable service. It comprises one 120 h. p. Buckeye boiler, one 60 h. p. Greenwald boiler, one 100 h. p. Buckeye engine, three dynamos of 1,000 incandescent and 18 arc light capacity; and the very latest appliances in switch boards, etc. Steam from the boilers in this power house is also furnished to two other engines, one in the flour mill and another in the planing mill, which are run in connection. Visitors to Lancaster are emphatic in their praise of the system of electric lighting, the service being reliable and the quality of light furnished being up to the highest standards, and at prices lower than are asked in many of the cities. The flour mill owned by Mr. Ward, is a credit to the town, being a model mill in every respect, and turning out a grade of flour that is not to be excelled. The plant was reconstructed about a year ago, and equipped with thoroughly modern machinery, comprising all the facilities that mechanical skill could devise or experience suggest. Its outfit comprises a full roller process with Nordyke & Moran rotary sifters. This is far superior to any other system, making a finer grade of flour. The standard productions are White Swan and Gilt Edge, both of which are in high favor with bread makers hereabouts. All wheat is bought at the mill door, an elevator being provided, having a capacity of 3000 bushels. Mr. Ward takes a pardonable pride in his model electric light plant and flour mill, and his enterprise in supplying Lancaster with such important institutions justly merits and receives the indorsement and hearty co-operation of every business man in the community.

MASON HOTEL.

U. D. Simpson, Proprietor.

An old landmark of Lancaster, and a house which occupies a prominent position because of its popularity and the associations attached to it, is the Mason Hotel. Here the visitor can secure a substantial meal and a clean and comfortable bed at moderate prices. The meals are well cooked and promptly served and contain a variety of meats, vegetables in season and a good cup of coffee. The rates at the Mason are $1.50 per day, though the accommodations given far outweigh the prices charged. U. D. Simpson, the popular proprietor became identified with the Mason Hotel seven years ago. Every body in Garrard county knows Mr. Simpson and admires his popularity. He is a genial and social host, possessing the happy faculty of making every one feel "at home."

R. ZIMMER.

Bakery, Restaurant, Groceries.

The constant and increasing demand for the productions of this establishment in bread, rolls, cakes, etc., is the sure and certain criterion of their merit and excellence. Mr. R. Zimmer, when quite young, was apprenticed to the baker's trade in Freiburg, Germany, learning it with that thoroughness, characteristic of the European countries, and coming to this country worked in the leading establishments of Chicago, Cincinnati and other large cities. In 1888 he embarked in business for himself at Stanford, where he remained for seven years, then at Richmond for five years, and finally settled in Lancaster two years ago. The productions of his ovens are welcome in the homes hereabouts, being light, wholesome, and always reliable in quality, being made from the choicest ingredients. Mr. Zimmer also carries a full line of staple and fancy groceries, making an effort to have on hand all pure food commodities to supply any demand. In a neat and inviting apartment regular meals and short orders are served at popular prices. This summer an elegant soda fountain will be installed, and an ice cream parlor opened, where the public will be served by the plate or in quantities for home consumption. Mr. Zimmer follows simple methods in business affairs, endeavoring to, and is successful in giving an honest equivalent. He has made a host of friends in Lancaster, and because of the honesty of his dealings, he possesses the confidence and regard of the entire community.

S. D. MERRITT.

Blacksmithing, Horseshoeing Etc.

Twenty-five years of constant employment in the mechanical lines ought to provide one with a fund of valuable knowledge and plenty of experience. This is the record of S. D. Merritt, practical machinist and blacksmith and who possesses the required mechanical ability to execute contracts in all kinds of iron, steel and wood work. He is prepared to do implement and vehicle repairing of every description and charges both for service and material at fair and honest prices. The shoeing of horses is done by G. W. Ball who exercises skill and judgment, and corrects and cures many of the defects to which the horse is subject, and which properly come within his sphere. Mr. Merritt was formerly in charge of the local electric light plant and is quite well known hereabouts. He is a first class mechanic and offers to his patrons all the inducements of skill and experience, giving to the community modern facilities in mechanical lines.

R. KINNAIRD.

Insurance.

Insurance organizations of acknowledged reputation, when seeking to secure local representation consult their interests best in enlisting the services and co-operation of men of intelligence, men who have established reputations in their community, who have the requisite business capacity and are especially qualified for the duties of underwriting. This is, after all, as it should be, for large representative companies mean large capital and an army of skilled employees, and these can be supported and maintained only by first-class ability in the field. Thus the character of an agency can at once be established by the companies which comprise the agency, for they reflect faithfully its local importance and standing. The insurance-agency of Mr. R. Kinnaird takes rank among the leading insurance enterprises of Central Kentucky, both in volume of business done, and in the high standing of the organizations represented. This business was established in 1865 by Mr. W. H. Kinnaird, the venerable banker of Lancaster, who, on retiring from active business 20 years ago transferred the agency to his son. Policies are written with liberal provisions, consistent with wise and judicious principles of underwriting and in companies whose reputation for reliability is unquestioned. Comprising this agency are the Aetna, National, Hartford, and Connecticut of Hartford, the Queen, New York Underwriters Agency, German American, Phoenix of Brooklyn, the Hanover, and Greenwich of New York, the Liverpool London and Globe, the North British and Mercantile, the Scottish Union and National and the Georgia Home in fire insurance; the Mutual Life of N. Y., one of the strongest and best life insurance companies in the world; and the U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty which supplies bonds for individuals, guardians, administrators and lawyers acting in a fiduciary capacity. Mr. Kinnaird conducts his business on a progressive basis, and has met with pronounced success, a fact evidenced in the reputation which his agency enjoys as being one of the largest in Central Kentucky. He was for twenty-three years Teller of the National Bank of Lancaster, and his established integrity has won for him the confidence and highest regard of all the people in the community.

DR. H. G. SANDLIN.

Physician and Surgeon.

In glancing over the list of Lancaster's practicing physicians the conclusion is reached that the people of this section are favored in a class of men possessing pronounced experience knowledge and ability. Conspicuous among the names is that of Dr. H. G. Sandlin who in his practice of one short year in this locality, has already achieved considerable prominence and distinction. Dr. Sandlin was born in McKee Kentucky and received his elementary education in the public and high schools of Jackson county. The desire to follow professional life had been implanted at an early age and his life was shaped with a view of realizing this ambition. Accordingly he attended the A. M. College in Lexington where he received a classical training, and subsequently the Medical department of the University of Louisville from which he was graduated in 1892 locating in Manchester, Ky., he pursued successfully the practice of his profession, until realizing the advantages and possibilities of Lancaster, and its bright promise of future development, he removed here one year ago. Dr. Sandlin keeps thoroughly up in all the advances of medical science, and in the year 1900 took general courses at the New York Post Graduate School and the New York Polytechnic, together with special courses in Operative Surgery and Clinical Microscopy. He is a worthy acquisition to the community and we heartily commend him to those needing his services.

DRS. WESLEY & BURNETT.

Physicians and Surgeons.

Possessing the advantages of an education in the service of medicine as revealed by the study and experience of the world's most eminent and latest authorities, Drs. Wesley & Burnett are thoroughly equipped to render a service in keeping with the progress that is being constantly made. Dr. I. S. Wesley was born in Casey county, receiving a classical and scientific education at Augusta College, and a thorough training in the science of medicine at the University of Louisville, from the medical department of which institution he was graduated in 1889. After a review of his studies in a post graduate course, he began practice in his native place, locating in Lancaster in 1898. Dr. W. Burnett, also a native of Kentucky, was graduated from the Hospital College of Louisville in 1888, and practiced with great success in Mt. Eden, Shelby county for three years, and at Windsor, Ills. for eight years. In 1892 he returned to Louisville for a post graduate course, and afterwards entered the Cook county Infirmary at Chicago where he pursued a special study in the diseases of the eye and ear. About one year ago he came to Lancaster and became associated with Dr. Wesley. Both gentlemen are of marked ability in their profession. As practitioners there is fidelity and integrity in their professional services which invite and foster popular confidence as well as the universal esteem of the community, both of which favors they now enjoy.

J. R. HASELDEN.

Hardware, Implements, Harness.

In the magnitude and pronounced excellence of the several stocks to be found in the establishment of J. R. Haselden, farmers, property owners, contractors and house-keepers may supply their needs promptly, and with entire satisfaction. The hardware stock embraces all the devices and utensils to be found in a complete assortment of hardware, including cutlery, mechanics tools, tin and granite ware, household supplies, etc. The line of stoves exhibited includes the celebrated Bom Steel Ranges, and the productions of Fischer, Leaf & Co., and the Favorite Stove Co., which combine all that capital and experience can produce in improved ideas, simplicity of operation, durability and economy. The mechanical department contains a complement of tools and devices for promptly executing all contracts in roofing, tin and galvanized iron work, skilled mechanics only being employed. Mr. Haselden is distributor in this section for the Parlin & Orendorf machinery, Owensboro farm wagons, Avery & Son's implements, Gelser threshers, Champion binders and mowers, as well as other equally well-known makes of farm machinery. He also carries the Columbia Buggy Co.'s productions and a full line of buggies, carriages and light wagons that are honest equivalents and can be safely guaranteed both for price and durability. Mr. Haselden has been engaged in business in Lancaster for the past fourteen years, and is favorably well known throughout the surrounding country. He is to be commended for supplying the public with the best possible facilities to secure their needs in the lines handled, and his enterprise and alertness are evidenced in a stock which comprises standard productions and goods of established merit and reputation. He is the patentee of the Haselden Filter, a filter that filters in the strongest sense of the word, the water entering the cistern enabling you to have at all seasons of the year clear, wholesome water, free from all impurities. This filter has received the endorsement of all the leading physicians of Central Kentucky, and over 600 are now in use in Garrard county alone and each is giving eminent satisfaction.

R. A. STONE.

Furniture, Undertaking, Groceries, Etc.

The establishment of R. A. Stone, offers to the citizens of Lancaster and vicinity, advantages which are not to be excelled, in the several lines which comprise his business. In the furniture store his stock offers ample variety because of its magnitude, and the facilities for equipping the home in all that is new and improved are unsurpassed. The stock is made up of a selection of assorted woods in style and design, which represent all that is popularly accepted and approved, embracing parlor and bedroom furniture, sideboards, center tables, rockers, iron and brass bedsteads, and a large line of couches upholstered in a variety of styles. The grocery store contains an excellent assortment of staple and fancy goods, teas, coffees, extracts, etc., of established purity and excellence. These are purchased in quantities that face prices, and hence the figures quoted throughout are bed rock. Mr. Stone also deals in hay, feed, corn and coal, and offers to the farmers of this section the highest cash prices for their produce. An important branch, which to conduct satisfactorily, requires thoroughly modern equipment, scientific knowledge, and a natural adaptability for the requirements of the profession is that of undertaking and funeral directing. Possessing an equipment which guarantees the very best facilities in point of service, and with a knowledge derived from a thorough course of study in the Champion school of embalming, Mr. Stone is prepared to render in the care of the dead and the conduct of funerals skillful and efficient services. Every appointment is first-class and this applies to the funeral car and funeral furnishings.

It requires great care and experience to compound employed. Mr. Stone has been engaged in business in Lancaster seven years, and was previously located on the square until his place was destroyed by fire in 1897. Enterprise is the trade magnet of his establishments and this appears in volume of business, in variety of stocks, and in general satisfaction which is attendant upon every transaction.

BANKS HUDSON.

Hemp, Hemp Seed and Hay.

That business or enterprise which provides a selling market for producers, and which enjoys the very best facilities to secure conditions favorable to giving them the best returns for their commodities is always an important and highly favored institution. Banks Hudson began business in Lancaster four years ago, and during that time has established an excellent reputation for liberality and integrity. His equipment comprises a large and substantially constructed store house, having a capacity for two hundred tons of rough hemp, and ample additional room for the storage of wool and hay. One of the latest machines is installed to compress and bale the hemp, while a large elevator facilitates the handling of it. Mr. Hudson is one of the most extensive dealers in hemp seed in Central Kentucky and aside from local trade, is constantly making shipments to all parts of the country. He also handles wool in great quantities, and hay which he retails to farmers and horse owners in the neighborhood, and in his business and social relations he makes friends rapidly.

B. BURNETT, SUGARS & CO.

Ladies and Gents Furnishings.

A neatly arranged store and a carefully selected stock tell in stronger terms than words the class of patronage of any establishment. These remarks apply to the business of Burnett, Sugars & Co., whose store is a model of neatness and propriety. The various departments embrace the productions of leading manufacturers, and contain variety in ladies' and gentlemen's wear, correct in style and design at satisfactory prices. The bright and attractive stocks of international dress shirts, neckwear, hats and shoes invite the particular to select their needs with satisfaction, having variety of style and quality, and alluring prices to make quick sales. The shoe department is a popular one and embraces such standard makes as the Julian-Kokenge and Queen of Boston in ladies and Misses, and the Budd-Riley and Helmers-Bettman in mens. Dr. Burnett and Thos. W. Burnett and O. W. Shugars compose the firm. Mr. T. W. Burnett has had an extensive experience in the furnishing goods line which dates from 1883. Mr. Shugars who has recently acquired an interest in the business is the present county Treasurer and needs no introduction to the people of this vicinity. The business reflects wide-awake methods, and bespeaks an able and enterprising management. Your needs in shoes, furnishing goods, hats, wash fabrics, laces and embroideries, notions etc., supplied with newest creations at low prices.

WILLIAMS & CHANCE.

Coal, Hay, Corn, Etc.

Popular requirements in the almost universal article of coal is supplied in a highly satisfactory degree by Williams & Chance. They handle the best qualities of East Tennessee coal, Blue Gem and Red Ash, and the choicest production of the mines in hard coal. Their facilities for doing business are excellent for they buy at the source of supply in quantities that secure the very lowest prices and thus provide direct communication between the operator and consumer. They are thus enabled to quote bed rock figures, and by always aiming to carry a large stock on hand the supply may be relied on as being both constant and regular. They are also wholesale and retail dealers in hay and corn, which they are prepared to purchase in any quantities. J. T. Williams and D. C. Chance comprise the firm. Though but recently organized this concern is meeting with much success, and future prospects are bright and encouraging.

NOEL SISTERS.

Millinery.

The millinery establishment of the Noel Sisters, which, for the past three years has supplied so successfully the needs of the ladies of this vicinity in artistic and fashionable creations in the millinery art, still continues to do a thriving business. Popular appreciation goes out ungrudgingly wherever merit is to be found. Hence the generous recognition of this establishment, because of the taste displayed in selecting the markets latest productions, and the artistic ability evidenced in harmonizing colors and trimming tastefully. For the coming season an elaborate stock of the latest shapes for spring and summer will be displayed, and the stock of trimmings that promises to out-do all former efforts. Noel Sisters operate another store at Danville, and propose to open another branch at Buckeye, which will be in charge of Miss Lily Jones. The local establishment presided over by Miss Lily Noel, is known to nearly all the ladies of this section, and the reputation it has earned is a guarantee that the needs of the public will be supplied well and faithfully, and with that assurance of satisfaction that has characterized all former efforts.

L. L. WALKER.

Attorney.

One of the well known attorneys of the local bar, and a gentleman who has built up and enjoys a clientele comprising the leading property owners and business men of this section is Mr. L. L. Walker. Mr. Walker is a native of Garrard county, receiving his education in the local schools and at Central University, from which he was graduated in 1893. His preliminary training completed, he entered the office of Gov. Bradley, whose appointments he now occupies, and under his tutelage, and by assiduous study, qualified for practice in 1894. In 1901 he was appointed county attorney and discharged the duties of the office with marked ability and fidelity. He is also attorney for the L. & N. railroad. Mr. Walker is among the prominent attorneys of Central Kentucky, thoroughly popular throughout this section, and possesses the confidence of the citizens generally, because of his conscientious and earnest effort in any cause in which his services are enlisted.

T. J. HATCHER.

Shoemaker.

Doing a nice business in making footwear to order, the establishment of T. J. Hatcher presents a busy appearance. Mr. Hatcher is a skillful workman, having followed the trade for over thirty-two years, and because of the satisfaction rendered, his services have met with popular recognition. He buys only select oak-tanned leather, thus assuring first-class material, while his finished and artistic work in the making of boots and shoes has attracted a patronage from miles away. Repairing of all kinds is promptly executed at reasonable prices. Mr. Hatcher came to Lancaster from Stanford, Ky., five years ago. As before mentioned, he is kept constantly busy for a good article made to measure from selected material and exhibiting the finish of a skilled tradesman, is sure to invite and assure continued patronage. Mr. Hatcher is a veteran of the civil war, and served under the gallant General Stonewall Jackson throughout the career of that dashing officer, participating in many notable battles.

DR. WALTER S. BEASLEY.

Dentist.

Beauty and health are inexorable in their demands that care and attention be taken of the teeth, with advancing civilization the field of the dentist broadens and his skill and knowledge become indispensable. Located in neat and convenient apartments on Danville street, Dr. Walter S. Beasley keeps actively engaged in supplying the needs of a numerous and select patronage for modern dental work. His equipment mechanically is complete in every detail, and in knowledge and skill he offers the results of a thorough training in the science of dentistry at the Indiana Dental College from which institution he was graduated in 1891. After practicing for three years in Indianapolis, he located in Lancaster in 1894, and so marked has been his success that his services have obtained the recognition of Garrard county's best people. Dr. Beasley is a successful practitioner in dental surgery, operative and mechanical dentistry, his large practice indicating his popularity and skill. Socially he is held in high regard, and as a member of the Odd Fellows, K. of P., A. O. U. W. and Macabees, he takes an active interest in all the affairs of these fraternal organizations.

DR. J. M. ACTON.

Physician and Surgeon.

During the past decade no science has made such rapid strides as that of medicine. Operations are now performed and cures effected, which years ago were seemingly impossible. There is scarcely a part of the human anatomy that cannot now be reached and successfully operated upon. As one of those skillful in medicine and surgery we are pleased to name Dr. J. M. Acton. Dr. Acton is a close student and keeps fully abreast of all advances made in his profession. He is a graduate of the Kentucky University, where he received a thorough training in physics and chemistry, preparatory to taking up the study of medicine, and also of the Kentucky School of Medicine of Louisville. During his residence in Lancaster, he has demonstrated in repeated success, a knowledge of his profession of a high order, and has made many friends not only in a professional capacity, but in a social way as well. Dr. Acton's laboratory and operating room are complete in every respect, the latest edition being a modern Nebulizer for the treatment of diseases of the throat and nose. With this apparatus the properties of the medicine are injected or sprayed into the effected parts without filling the system with drugs.

R. L. DAVIDSON.

Attorney at Law.

Among the young practitioners at the Garrard county bar, and one who in his short career as an attorney has demonstrated marked ability and natural aptitude, the name of R. L. Davidson is at once suggested. Mr. Davidson was born and raised in Lancaster receiving his elementary education in the local school, to which was added a liberal education at the Kentucky University at Lexington, where he was graduated in the class 1896. Entering the law department of the University of Virginia he prepared himself for the practice of law by a thorough and complete course and was admitted to the bar in 1899. Mr. Davidson has since proved himself to be painstaking and conscientious in the performance of duty, exhibiting marked fidelity in conserving the interests of his clients, and aggressive in advocating their claims. He is laying the foundation for a progressive career and a large and select practice. In connection with his profession Mr. Davidson also deals in real estate the scope of his operations including everything in this line.

The object of the business men of Lancaster is, as it has ever been, to give the people of the community the best the market affords, and at the lowest possible prices. Our merchants have in their stores stocks of goods that are unsurpassed in quality and style by any of the establishments in the larger cities, and they are enabled to sell them on a closer margin because their profits are not devoured by excessive rents, high salaries and extortionate taxes as they are in the metropolises of the country. There is variety of price and quality to suit every condition, and all needs are anticipated. There is therefore no excuse for going away from Lancaster to supply one's wants. The home merchant's reputation is, after all, his greatest capital. He must deal honestly by his patrons or his reputation is destroyed. His reputation gone, he may as well close the doors of his establishment. So, too, the mechanic. Our tradesmen in Lancaster have exactly the same advantages as those in larger places, and in consequence are enabled to produce and dispense of their wares and render their expert services at prices far below those in other cities. These then are the facts,—our merchants carry stocks which in variety and quality are comparable to any in the larger cities, their expenses are less, thus enabling them to sell on closer margin; our mechanics, in all lines, are skilled and are enabled to render their services cheaply, and these being the facts it is obviously to the advantage of the people of the surrounding country to patronize the industries of Lancaster.

Forty years faithful service. In supplying the needs of the public in groceries is the record of the establishment founded and conducted by Theodore Curry. Forty years ago Mr. Curry came to Lancaster from Harrodsburg, and desiring to engage in mercantile pursuits, started a grocery store. His methods were simple, he began by learning the desires of his customers, and then sought to satisfy those desires by pure food productions at honest prices. This policy he has always maintained, and these methods have been proof against competition—a fact evidenced by the constant retention of almost all patrons. Mr. Curry carries a full line of select canned and bottled goods, a full stock of extracts, spices and staples, and the leading brands of flour. He handles a choice assortment of queensware from which the housekeeper may satisfy her needs at satisfactory prices. Garden and field seeds also form part of the stock, while the highest market prices are paid for farm produce. Mr. Curry is the oldest merchant in Lancaster and has won the esteem of all because of his sterling integrity and the honesty of his methods. He has been a member of the City Council serving several terms, and was also chairman of the Board of School Trustees for three years, offices which he filled with characteristic ability and fidelity.

The hardware and implement house of K. F. Postle is one of the important mercantile enterprises of Lancaster. On January 1st Mr. Postle purchased the business of J. C. Robinson, and has already developed such a capacity for promptly supplying all requirements in his line, as to have acquired a recognition that makes him a formidable competitor for business. His establishment is well-stocked with a complete line of building and domestic hardware, tinware, mechanics tools, cutlery, and stoves. Only stoves of tried reputation find a place in this stock among which may be mentioned the Great Majestic ranges, "O. K." and Omaha cook stoves, Radiant Home heaters and Moore's air tight heaters. The facili-

Among Garrard county's medical practitioners whose repeated successes have won for him an excellent reputation for knowledge and ability the name of Dr. H. M. Grant at once suggests itself. Dr. Grant was born and raised in Lancaster receiving his elementary education in the local schools. Subsequently he supplemented his earlier training by a course of study at the Central College of Kentucky, and at this institution gained a knowledge of the arts and sciences. Always ambitious to make the study and practice of medicine his life pursuit he became a student at the University of New York where he received the degree of M. D., with an additional course at the Hospital College of Medicine of Louisville, from which institution he was graduated in the class of 1894. He immediately settled down to practice in Lancaster and as has been previously hinted his success has been pronounced. Dr. Grant combines affability with earnestness, fidelity with thoroughness, and knowledge with tact and resourcefulness. He enjoys a select and increasing practice, the result of intelligent and well directed effort.

Dr. B. F. Walter needs no introduction to the people of Garrard county. For twenty-three years has he faithfully supplied their needs in dental work, earning for himself an enviable reputation as a learned, skillful and careful practitioner. His office equipment is most complete comprising everything conducive to the efficiency of his practice, the most up-to-date, scientific methods being employed. Dr. Walter is a native of Lincoln county, and received a thorough training in the art of dentistry under the tutelage of Dr. A. F. Merriman at Stanford. In 1879 he located in Lancaster and during the years that have intervened his multiplied successful efforts have firmly established his knowledge and skill in operative and mechanical dentistry. He has built up a large and select practice, and in doing so has followed the sure method of permitting his efforts to proclaim their merit. An occupied chair, and waiting patients are the best evidence of popular appreciation, and this condition may be beheld any day at Dr. Walter's office.

The business of buying and shipping poultry and eggs has developed wonderfully in the past ten or fifteen years. It has proved an untold benefit to the farmer, placing him, through the local buyer, in close touch with the sources of demand, and thus securing top prices. One of the leading establishments of Garrard county devoted to this industry is that operated by H. B. Northcott. Mr. Northcott's output will average from ten thousand to twelve thousand turkeys each year, one hundred to five hundred cases of eggs per week, about sixteen hundred geese per season, and from ten thousand to twenty thousand fowls per season thus will be seen the magnitude to which his business has grown from a small and humble beginning a few years ago. For the past two years for about six months at a time a branch house has been operated at Danville. It is the intention of Mr. Northcott to make this a

The business of merchant tailoring has, in the last few years, undergone a radical change, and the sample system whereby the purchaser is enabled to make his selections in cloth from a variety of patterns and grades, and have his garments cut and made in leading tailoring establishments in large cities, has come into popularity. Judge J. C. Hemphill represents several of the celebrated houses of the country, and garments coming from his establishment are characterized by fit, style and workmanship. His line of samples embraces the latest and most fashionable designs from both foreign and domestic mills, while prices are such as to meet every condition and purse. This is one of the most popular agencies in this section, the sales averaging from twenty-four hundred to four thousand dollars. Judge Hemphill needs no introduction to the people of this section. For sixteen years he has been secretary of the Lancaster B. & L. Association, and is also secretary and general manager of the Garrard Hotel Co. In 1890 he was elected Police Judge of Lancaster, an office which he filled with much credit. Of all the cases decided by Judge Hemphill, and the many decisions rendered by him during his term of office, never was one reversed, though many were appealed to the higher courts. This is truly a high tribute to the ability of the Judge.

The bulk, appearance of this establishment, the variety and volume of the several lines carried, the methods employed indicative of push and energy—all these tell the story of popularity and the prosperous business. The stock carried is the result of fifteen years of experience in catering to the public and responds faithfully to the needs of the people of this section. It embraces dry goods, fine dress goods, silk and wash fabrics, in fact everything in the dry goods line, notions, ladies and gents furnishing goods, clothing, hats and caps, shoes, carpets etc. The dry goods department is replete with the seasons' brightest offerings, while the shoe department contains the production of leading makers the country over, notably the Helmers, Bettman & Co., Seltz, and Milford Shoe Co.'s in men's, and the Krohn, Fecheimer in ladies' foot wear. The clothing department displays an excellent assortment of suitings and spring overcoats, and measurements are taken for garments made to measure by the leading tailoring establishments of the country. This business had an humble and unpretentious beginning. From time to time new lines were added and from time to time additions and improvements to keep abreast with increasing business have been made until now two large store-rooms are occupied. Mr. Batson has given to Lancaster advantages in the mercantile lines which are traceable only to marked enterprise and a constant alertness to discover and supply popular needs.

So much do individual enterprise and commercial progress depend on banking facilities in general that a review of Lancaster's mercantile enterprises would be far from complete did it not contain mention of its monetary institutions. Contributing then to the favorable conditions existing locally in monetary affairs and ever responsive to popular needs in money matters, the Citizens National Bank merits especial mention. This bank was organized and began business in 1883, and because of the ability and wisdom of its management its history has been one of steady progress, indicating popular favor and deserved confidence. A general banking business is done. The policy of the institution is a happy blending of judicious liberality, with a wise conservatism, wherein enterprise, in so far as it may be consistent with sound business principles, is fostered and encouraged. The officers are L. Y. Leavell, President; J. S. Robinson, Vice President; B. F. Hudson, Cashier, and the directors are J. J. Walker, T. M. Arnold, J. S. Robinson, B. F. Hudson and L. Y. Leavell. All these gentlemen are well known for their sterling integrity, and in their long residence in the community they have won the confidence and esteem of the public.

The oldest, and one of the most reliable jewelry stores in this section is that of J. C. Thompson. Thirty years in supplying the needs of the public have won for this establishment the confidence of the community and a steady and select patronage. All the standard makes in watch cases and watch movements are carried, together with a choice selection of silverware, rings, charms, cut glass ware, statuary and bric-a-brac, and a variety of articles suitable for wedding and birthday presents. Musicial instruments and musical merchandise also form part of the stock. In the setting of diamonds, and in the manufacturing and repairing of jewelry Mr. Thompson is an expert, his services being in constant demand because of his well-known mechanical ability. The many years in which this establishment has been serving the public have tested its methods, and won the confidence of the community. The result is a patronage made up of the best people of this section.

central Kentucky which bear the prestige of years of useful and faithful services to the community wherein located, none stands forth more prominently, is more deserving of popular esteem, or possesses in a greater measure the well merited confidence of the public than the National Bank of Lancaster. Its history has been that of the mercantile development of the town, and wise conservatism and matured and experienced judgment mark its established policy. This bank is the outgrowth of the first financial establishment organized in this section, has been a national bank for nearly forty years, and alike in periods of depression and financial stringency as in days of prosperity, has it been ever faithful. It has always maintained a reputation of the highest order for the skillful management of its affairs, and for the broad principles on which it is conducted. The officers, men who possess in a marked degree, the esteem and confidence of the public, are: President, A. R. Denny; Vice President, Jno. E. Stormes; Cashier, S. C. Denny; Assistant Cashier, J. F. Robinson, Jr. and Bookkeeper, R. T. Embry, and the Directors: Alex. R. Denny, J. E. Stormes, Wm. H. Kinnaird, J. C. Robinson and S. D. Cochran. The National Bank of Lancaster does a general banking business; issues drafts, discounts good negotiable paper, receives deposits, buys and sells foreign and American exchange, and pays particular attention to collections.

There is, perhaps, no business which to conduct satisfactorily, requires more innate ability than that of the milliner. There must be a natural appreciation for the harmony of color, blending to which must be added the skill to execute artistically, and with propriety of style and shape. In this connection the creation of Miss Sallie D. Tillett, whose new quarters are situated on Danville avenue near Squares, have drawn to her a class of patronage which is made up of the very best people in and around Lancaster. The stock carried is selected with experienced taste and judgment, and embraces the latest and correct decrees of fashion, including a choice line of trimmings, notions, etc. A handsome assortment of seasonable goods have been ordered for the grand spring opening, which will be held about March 29th. The stylish effects and costly creations to be exhibited at this opening will far outstrip any previous display made in Lancaster. Miss Laura Smith will this season be in charge of the trimming department, and will look after this branch of the business in her able and efficient manner.

Austin Kemper & Co., are prepared to supply the residents of Lancaster and the farmers of Garrard county with their needs in coal, feed, lumber and meal. They secure their coal in car-load lots, contracting at the mine for quantities which secure bed-rock figures, thus enabling them to quote to their patrons the very lowest price. They handle the best Jellico, semi-cannel and Manchester productions, which have given eminent satisfaction. Their place of business is located near the depot and close to the R. R. tracks where there is ample shed room for the accommodation of the business. They also buy and sell feed, meal and lumber, and are at all times prepared to handle any quantity, and to supply any demand. Thos. Austin and F. B. Kemper comprise the firm, both natives of Garrard county, and well known to every one for miles around. They give to the community the best facilities for securing their needs in the lines handled, and supply the best possible condition for the prompt execution of orders at reasonable rates. They exercise the strictest integrity in all affairs, and are meeting with deserved success in their business.

Enterprise wherever it is found, and an honest effort to satisfy the demands of the public should always be commended and supported. The remarks are suggested by a visit to the furniture establishment of J. A. Beazley where the large stock, containing a wide variety of quality and design in household furniture, gives to the housekeeper superior facilities. There is variety in make, quality and style in parlor and bed-room suits, metal bedsteads, sideboards, rockers, dining and parlor chairs, tables, couches among other like appointments for the home.

embalmers. He carries a large stock of coffins, caskets and fine funeral furnishings, and is prepared to undertake the care and burial of the dead after the most approved methods. He is thoroughly proficient in the art of embalming being a graduate of the Clarke School at Cincinnati, and his repeated successes in this department are winning for him a splendid reputation. He is also a member of the State Undertakers Association and keeps thoroughly posted on all advances made in the profession. His equipment throughout is thoroughly up-to-date and includes a casket lowering device by which the casket is slowly and silently lowered into the grave by an automatic arrangement, thus doing away with the old method of straps, the use of which so many fatal accidents have occurred. Mr. Beazley is a native of Lancaster, and deserves the large patronage which it enjoys.

of saving of money and the building of homes is of direct benefit and importance to the whole community. Greatest among these aids is the building and loan association, and an institution which has been of great benefit to this town is the Lancaster Building and Loan Association. Its object is to promote the welfare and advancement of the community; to afford members an opportunity for safe investments of their monthly savings; and to facilitate the acquisition of homes. This association was organized in 1885 with an authorized capital stock of $300,000, and alike in periods of financial depression when similar organizations were forced to the wall as in days of prosperity, has it been ever faithful. Terms of borrowing in this association are extremely advantageous. An item for the renter to consider, si, that money paid for rent would pay, or nearly pay, building and loan dues—you have the use of the house all the time, and besides, you have the satisfaction of feeling that the house you live in is your own, and that you are on the road to competence and independence, while on the other hand, one has nothing to show for the money he pays for rent after it is gone. This association has ample funds and is prepared to make loans in any amount. The officers, W. H. Kinnard, President, S. C. Denny, Treasurer, and J. C. Hemphill, Sec'y., and Board of Directors have guided the affairs of the Lancaster B. & L. Association since its inception, and much credit is due them for the excellent record it has made. With its officers and directors, and large growing membership, all working for one common cause—to help each other, and to promote the welfare of our town and adjacent country districts, this splendid showing made by the Lancaster Building and Loan Association proves conclusively that "where there is union there is strength."

The old system of "charging it," by which the good invariably paid for the bad, has been completely supplanted in the cash methods introduced, and which will be strictly enforced by the Garrard Grocery Company. The cash system levels all ranks, for by cash, and cash alone, not credit, standing nor good institutions, or good goods be procured. Thus the storekeeper with money in one hand and an order for goods in the other, goes to the door of the producer or manufacturer and secures, at the very limit of the cost of production, prices which mean a saving to his patrons, and which cash only can secure. Mr. J. R. Jones, a life-long and well-known resident of Garrard county, recently purchased the stand of J. R. Payne, and the impetus which he has given to the business by the adoption of these wide awake methods has already produced very encouraging results. If stock comprises the best production in the food lines, and by rapid sale goods are kept fresh, pure and wholesome. The "Spot cash" method which he pursues is, after all, the popular one. It is following strict business principles to their legitimate results, swell profits and rapid sales, with each transaction complete in itself.

Firms like Deering & Co., who have spent, and are spending daily, fortunes for improved ideas in labor-saving farm machinery, do not place the results of their capital and experience in the hands of second rate ability, or allow them to remain there where once discovered. Hence is the conclusion naturally drawn that where we found a Deering agency, is also found a proprietor, wide awake and progressive management. Mr. E. C. Gaines has been the representative for this concern in Central Kentucky, and is an expert salesman, his record after one year bringing him recognition from the Company in the form of a regular annual salary. He has recently formed a partnership with his brother, W. R. Gaines, with an office at Ballou's grocery, and at their warehouses at Conn's machine shop, they will install a full and complete line of farm machinery, including Deering mowers, binders, shredders and hay rakes; the celebrated J. I. Case threshing machines, and in fact, all the leading makes of farm wagons, discols, cultivators and implements of every description. W. F. and E. C. Gaines have been life long residents of this section, and know every farm and farmer for miles around, thus possessing special advantages in their new venture, where an acquaintance is an entering wedge for acquiring business. They are pleasant gentlemen to meet, and this with their thorough knowledge of farm machinery and its field work, their excellent line of goods and their enterprising methods, will make the transaction of business a pleasure.

In a community which is almost entirely dependent upon the production of the soil, success and prosperity are attained largely through the effort and business ability of a class of men who have but little to do with the actual production. Labor may plant and cultivate and nature may produce in abundance, but the real success of the community depends more especially upon the profitable disposition of what has been produced. The prosperity of the tobacco growers of this locality has, therefore, been largely due to the energy, foresight and business ability of such men as C. M. Jenkins and E. P. Anderson who hold a prominent and enviable position. Mr. Jenkins has been a tobacco buyer here for twenty-five years past, and Mr. Anderson for thirty years, and their energy and business sagacity have been patent factors in promoting the welfare of the community. These gentlemen have recently joined forces and will hereafter represent the Continental Tobacco Company, and enjoying the closest relations with this concern will be enabled to secure for their patrons the most liberal advances, and the highest market prices. Their large warehouse has a storage capacity of 300,000 pounds of tobacco, which they will buy in any quantity, to be graded and shipped to factories all over the country. It is anticipated that they will handle this season nearly 400,000 lbs. Messrs. Jenkins & Anderson are thoroughly honorable and reliable in their dealings, as has long since been established, and they have in consequence won popular esteem and confidence.

These lesions can exist without any predisposing internal cause that has poisoned the blood, and the open discharging ulcer, or the festering sore on the lip, cheek or other part of the body will continue to spread and eat deeper into the flesh unless the blood is purified and the green serum or suppurated matter eliminated from the circulation.

THE CENTRAL RECORD. Supplement.

Lancaster, Ky., Thursday, March 6, 1902

Of Local Interest.

Circuit Court begins Monday.

Two cabins burned on the "Chute" Friday.

The large Higginbotham stock will be sold next Thursday. See ad.

Capt. Herndon calls the local day train the "Cold Molasses Special."

Rev. Wolford will preach at the Fork church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Judge Hemphill sold to James Clark, Jr., the Singleton farm, containing 131 acres, for $1,600.

Preaching at Antioch.

Rev. Allen R. Moore will preach at Antioch next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

"Railroad Jack" played to a small house Saturday night. The specialties were unusually good, but the play was a failure.

Some scoundrel stole a dozen fine chickens from Capt. White. Anybody who would treat Capt. this way is mean enough to be hung.

Judge Hemphill sold another lot in "Middlesboro" last Monday, 33 feet front, for $35. This is about six he has sold there.

Henley Bastin, one of the best electricians in Kentucky, has just installed the large new board at the telephone exchange, and the service is much improved.

How's This For Hi?

Mr. Jas. Clark, one of Garrard's most prominent farmers, raised 6,765 pounds of tobacco on 3 3/4 acres of land. This is 1,804 pounds to the acre, which was sold at $6.50.

Mrs. Hobbs has resigned her position in the telephone exchange, and is prepared to do all kind of dress-making, cutting, fitting, etc., at her residence on Lexington St. Satisfaction guaranteed. tf

Buys a Paper.

Charley Lewis, the clever editor of the Shelby News, has bought of Col. W. P. Walton, the Harrodsburg Democrat. Price $3,500. Mr. Lewis will run both papers.

While driving out the Buckeye pike Sunday, Dr. Kinnaird's horse became frightened and proceeded to demolish the vehicle and scatter the clever physician all over that end of Garrard. We are glad to say he escaped without harm.

Rural Deliveries.

Several petitions are being circulated for the establishment of rural free delivery in Garrard. They are receiving many signers, and the enterprise will be a "go." It will be a great convenience to those living away from the post offices.

Shooting at Crab Orchard.

Mr. Alex Beazley, formerly of this county, shot a man named Shannon at Crab Orchard Monday. The former is a member of the City Council, and we understand the trouble was over matters connected with the tax books, Shannon having been marshal of the town. Beazley was perfectly justifiable.

For Lieut. Governor.

A prominent Democrat tells THE RECORD that Hon. R. H. Tomlinson, of this city, would be a candidate for Lieut. Governor before the next state convention. He is thoroughly equipped for the place, and his long and faithful service demands recognition from his party.

Professor Tate Coming.

It is not often that the Secretary of a National political committee comes this way, and even if one does, he is seldom an orator. It happens that we are to have the privilege soon of listening to the National Prohibition Committee, Mr. James A. Tate, of Nashville, Tenn. He has long been identified with the Prohibition reform. No doubt a large audience will be present when he speaks here on the night of Wednesday, March 12th, at the Christian church. He will also hold a conference at the same place at three-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, where he will give a talk and where he hopes to meet all the friends of Prohibition, both men and women, and especially those who cannot come out at night. Remember the date, March 12th, everybody go. Remember also the afternoon conference.

New Feature For The Record.

THE RECORD has made arrangements to send an illustrated supplement once a month to each subscriber. This will contain much interesting reading matter for the ladies and young folks. There will be a handsome colored picture in each number, suitable for framing, two pages of fashion plates, culinary department, and in fact a little of everything in first class reading matter. As stated above, we will commence this month and continue throughout the year.

A Success.

The musical farce, "In Spotless Town," was presented at the Garrard Opera House Wednesday evening by a number of Danville people. As the entertainment had not been thoroughly advertised, only a small audience witnessed the performance, but those present were delighted. The singing was exceptionally good, and the work of Miss Clyde McGinnis, as "May Ring," is worthy of especial mention. Mr. Boyle Woolfolk, the writer, is to be congratulated on the success of the performance. The C. U. minstrel first part was up to the average amateur show. Saxton's orchestra played the accompaniments. His band is a great favorite in Lancaster.

Bids on Turnpikes.

The Fiscal Court was busy this week opening and awarding bids for repairing the pikes for the ensuing year. The bids averaged from 5.50 to $7.50 per rod, according to location. This is to quarry, break and spread the metal. The gravel bids ran from $3.50 to $5.00 per rod. While we are unable now to give the exact figures on the contracts awarded, yet we would estimate the cost to average about $6.50 per rod, to sum up the entire work. There are about ninety miles of pike to be kept up. There is a strong feeling in the court to have the rock crushed, and there were several bids to do the work this way.

Labadie's Faust the 13th.

Hon. Lillard H. Carter, of Anderson county, was in town yesterday and paid us a pleasant call. He is a candidate for Congress in this district.

Labadie's Faust will be seen by a large audience at the Garrard Opera House Thursday night, the 13th. Its best production of this beautiful play on the road.

Prof. Harbison Dead.

Prof. J. M. Harbison died at Mitchellsburg Monday and was buried in the family burying ground near there. He had many friends in Lancaster.

Faust.

Hurbert Labadie's Faust will be presented at the Garrard Opera House next Thursday, the 13th. Labadie's production is said to be far ahead of Porter J. White's, and a large crowd will witness the performance. Seats now on sale at Stormes'.

The Worst Ever.

A large chromo will be given the person who will make oath that he ever saw a more severe or disagreeable spell of weather than we have experienced during the past few months. Sleet, ice and snow have covered the ground most of the time, and a mean, cold wind has added its mite to make life miserable. A deep snow fell Tuesday night, and as we go to press the "beautiful" is coming steadily down.

Death of Mrs. Rose.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Mary E. Rose, died at her home in Louisville Tuesday morning. After appropriate services, the remains were interred in Cave Hill Cemetery, in that city yesterday. Mrs. Rose was a daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, dec'd, and sister of Mrs. Geo. R. Harden, and Mr. Wm. G. Smith, and was born and raised in Lancaster. She was a devout christian woman, tender-hearted and was beloved by a wide circle of friends. Her husband, Capt. John W. Rose, and several children, all about grown are left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother, and in their grief, the sympathy of a host of friends here in their old home goes out to them.

About Waterworks.

The committee appointed by the City Council to look into the water works proposition has received so many different kind of propositions and suggestions that it has wisely decided to go slow in the matter and be sure they are on the right track before taking definite steps. While it is certain the system will be put in this summer, yet the final plans have not been decided upon. The matter is in the hands of Judge J. S. Robinson and Capt. Wm. Herndon, and two men better qualified for the work could not have been selected. While the plan is well mapped out, yet it is deemed best to not publish it in this issue, but we believe we will be able to print the entire details next week. That Lancaster is to have waterworks is a settled fact, no ifs and ands about it this time.

Quite a number of interesting letters were crowded out of this issue.

A low telephone wire pulled the headlight and stack off the No. 42 engine, near town, Tuesday night.

C. W. Frisbie has accepted a position with H. B. Northcott, and will be pleased to wait on his old friends.

A Pointer.

We understand promoters of the proposed electric railway from here to Hickman are obtaining deeds from property holders along the line. This is alright, but THE RECORD respectfully suggests to said property holders that they insert in the transfers a clause stating, "If the Southern, or any other Railroad is built through said land, said electric railway company is to give a free right of way over lands so decided," or words to this effect. Remember this now, and look into it. As we have always contended, the Southern is going to be built, and its well enough to avoid possible complications.

BRYANTSVILLE.

J. B. Leavel and a number of others attended court at Harrodsburg Monday. Mrs. John Ballard and children spent several days last week with her sister, Mrs. J. X. Dunn. Miss Mattie Boner, of Hickman, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. C. C. Becker. Mr. John Dunn, who fell from a wagon a few weeks ago, is still confined to his room. Mr. Clint Armstrong, a former resident of this place, now of Junction City, we are sorry to report, is on the sick list. The Misses Dunn entertained a number of friends at tea on last Thursday. Mr. S. S. Dickerman and Bent Holcome, went to Nicholasville on business Monday. Miss Ida Shearer has returned home to Nicholasville after spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Ben Mullins. On March 1st, a little daughter came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bent Holcome.

PREACHERSVILLE.

J. P. Ballard bought 15 nice steers from Mr. Cox at 4 cts per lb.

J. H. Rigsby bought a combined horse from Eb Scott for about $75.

A. J. Thompson sold his Carson farm to R. J. McAlister $7,000 cash.

Pate Parrish bought some nice ewes from W. H. Brown for $4 per head.

Flem Cummins Sr., died at his home here last Friday night in his 89th year.

J. H. Rigsby is moving to his Hayden farm this week. Mr. Payne, from Knox county, was here last week looking for a farm, and reports contracting for the farm of Miss Elisa J.
